NEW FACES

WILLIAM P. BRITAIN comes to Lycoming as an assistant professor of psychology. After receiving his bachelor and master of arts from Wichita State University, he completed requirements for his doctor of philosophy at Texas Christian University where he was a University Fellow since 1969. The degree will be conferred next spring. Bill's wife is Janice.

WILLIAM D. FORD, a native of Mt. Vernon, Washington, comes to Lycoming as an assistant professor of English. He grew up in California where he received his bachelor of arts in history from Occidental College and was an Ebell Fellow. He then turned to English and earned a master of arts, a master of fine arts, and a doctor of philosophy in the field, all at the University of Iowa where he had a University Scholarship. Dr. Ford was an English instructor at Southwest Missouri College for a year and a teaching assistant in rhetoric for two years at Iowa. Bill's specialty area is creative writing, particularly poetry, and he has had poems published in Hemlock Review, Kansas Quarterly, Mississippi Review, North American Review, Plainsong, and Southern Poetry Review. His wife's name is Elizabeth Ann.

ERNEST D. GIGLIO, associate professor of political science and head of the department, comes here from the University of Akron. Fifteen years of teaching experience includes work at Villanova University and Dickinson College. After he had received a bachelor of arts from Queens College and a master of arts from SUNY at Albany, he earned his doctor of philosophy at Syracuse University.

Dr. Giglio has had work published by the National Council of Social Studies and the Dickinson Law Review. He was co-editor of Future Politics and editor of three volumes of the series Contemporary Issues in American Society.

PARENTS INVITED TO FALL WEEKEND

October
27-29

The annual Parents Weekend is scheduled for October 27-29. All parents are invited to visit the campus and participate in the activities being planned.

Registration will be held in Wertz Student Center on Friday afternoon and evening, and on Saturday morning. Detailed programs, tickets, etc. will be distributed at that time.

The Fall Reception in Pennington Lounge of the Academic Center from 5 to 10 p.m. will provide an opportunity for parents to meet and talk with members of the faculty and administrative staff.

Saturday's schedule will begin with brunch (parents are guests in the College Dining Room). The football game between Lycoming and Susquehanna will begin at 1:30 p.m. Parents are admitted without charge.

Saturday evening will feature a full-length movie (Plaza Suite), an Akron Theatre production, a musical program and planetarium shows.

We urge parents who have not made hotel or motel reservations for that weekend to do so immediately. We look forward to a good weekend and a large attendance.

William P. Britain

William D. Ford

Ernest and his wife, Karin, have three children: Christopher eight, David five, and Elizabeth ten months.

Ernest D. Giglio

Randy Miller Rissold

MRS. RANDY MILLER RASSOUL, a native of Toledo, Ohio, comes to Lycoming from the University of Michigan where she has been a teaching fellow since 1967 while completing her master of arts degree and work on her doctorate. Mrs. Rassoul earned her bachelor of arts at the University of Toledo and has also attended Middlebury College, Purdue University, and the University of Paris. The new assistant professor of French also has taught at Ohio Northern University.

Mrs. Rassoul and her husband, Jamal, have two sons Lawrence fourteen and Jeffrey twelve.

MICHAEL G. ROSKIN, assistant professor of political science, comes to Lycoming from Toulouse, France where he taught on a Fulbright Scholarship. The native of Ohio who grew-up in California received his bachelor of arts in journalism from the University of California at Berkeley, his master of arts in political science from the University of California at Los Angeles, and his doctor of philosophy in international studies from The American University where he was a graduate assistant. He also studied for a year at the University of Belgrade.

Dr. Roskin's broad background includes three years as a foreign service officer with the United States Information Service in Munich and Bern. He was an editor for the Associated Press in New York for two years and then assistant foreign editor with the Washington Post for a year.

Publications by Dr. Roskin include the instructor's manual for Irish and Frank's Tuohy: Nation States published this year by Appleton-Century-Crofts. His articles include "What New Isolationism?" published in the spring 1972 issue of Foreign Policy magazine and "Les operations de retrait sont menées avec un lentour calculé," in the Le Monde Diplomatique (Paris) December 1971 issue.

Mike and his wife, Theresa, have a nine-month old son, Alexander.

CAMPUS NOTES

GERTRUDE B. MADDEN, assistant professor of English, discussed the changing role of colleges at the annual Lycoming College Freshman Convocation service on September 8th in the Academic Center.

Citing changes in recent years from the college role of conservator of the traditional to increasing interest in the political and economic life of the community, Mrs. Madden said college students must become involved as "individuals and as a group" with "an emphasis on changes within man equal to changes which have occurred and are occurring outside him".

"We have phenomenal creature comforts, we are exploring the far reaches of the universe, we have prolonged life, and we have the promise of greater and greater technological achievements," Professor Madden told the students and faculty. "But we have hypocrisy, avarice, materialism, and war, and daily we see man's inhumanity to man, such as this week's tragedy in Munich. Our advances in the 'outer' world are astounding. Yet our advances in the 'inner' world seem not to have kept pace."

Concluding, Gerry said, "There is no better place to examine fragments of the world, nor to examine all institutions of the world, nor to examine self, than in the atmosphere that permeates a college campus. That is the job of all of us here, faculty and students alike. That's our task: lest we condemn ourselves to continue to relive the past by failing to remember and change things within us which perpetuate the negative and blunt the positive in the outer world."

Also participating in the convocation were President Harold H. Hutson, L. Paul Neider, director of religious activities, who gave the invocation and the benediction, Mrs. Mary L. Russell, organist, and the Lycoming College Choir under the direction of Walter C. McIver.

IMPROVEMENTS TO SEVERAL FACILITIES have been completed during the summer vacation. Included are a major renovation project in the gymnasium, construction of an eight-court tennis facility at the athletic field, and erection of outside lights to improve illumination on the campus.

The gymnasium project included replacement of the floor on the basketball court, installation of a new lighting system, new pull out bleachers, removal of the stage at the east end of the basketball court, and lengthening of the court playing area by four feet. The University Center machine has also been removed from the under basketball room and erected in a front lobby room adjacent to the basketball floor.

Both the new lights in the gym and those erected on campus are increasing a good deal substantially increasing the illumination of previous lighting facilities. Removal of the stage made it possible to extend the floor length four feet during the margin between the basketball room and the small floor, and most of the playing facilities of the basketball court.

Oliver E. Harris, director of development, said the improvements made to the gym will not only greatly extend its usefulness, but will also raise funds to finance construction of new gymnasium to continue using the present gymnasium for student activities and the physical education program after a new gym is built. The deteriorated condition of the floor in the five-year old building really was a major need necessary to provide continued use of the facility.

EIGHT STUDENTS ACCOMPANIED DR. EDUARDO GUERRA, professor of religion, and DR. DAVID A. LUZZ, assistant professor of religion to Israel this summer. The group, which participated with students and faculty members from other colleges and universities throughout the United States,

METZGER 76 YEARS YOUNG THAT IS — NOT CLASS OF

By BRUCE L. SWANGER

There is nothing unusual about a daughter enrolling at her father's alma mater to pursue a career in higher education.

However, it is, indeed, a rarity if this procedure is reversed. And Arthur B. Metzger, of Muncy, did just that early in September when he began classes at Lycoming more than thirty years after his daughter, Mrs. Frances Metzger Greene, had been a student here in 1941.

And what is probably even more unusual, Mr. Metzger just passed his 76th birthday anniversary, making him one of the oldest students ever to enter Lycoming.

It isn't that Mr. Metzger wants to continue his education as a means to an economic end. After all, he just retired last June as purchasing agent at Sprout-Waldron Company in Muncy after having worked fifty-seven years for the firm since graduation from Muncy High School in 1915. And anyone ambitious enough to continue with full employment for ten years after reaching normal retirement age would be expected to have some difficulty making adjustments to his daily routine.

Mr. Metzger's wife died twelve years ago, and with living alone at his home at 203 West Penn Street, he found he was "just rattling around the house" most of the day. Although he does enjoy reading, he concluded that he needed something in his life besides reading, dusting the furniture, and mowing the lawn.

And that is what prompted him to enroll at Lycoming. In addition to wanting something "worthwhile to occupy my time," Mr. Metzger explained that his daughter, who now resides near Portland, Oregon, gave him added incentive when she urged him to return to school.

When he first considered enrolling, Mr. Metzger was not certain what courses he wanted to take. Because he is fond of music, he leaned in that direction. After careful consideration, and with help from the admissions staff, he decided to take only one course the first semester. Because he so thoroughly enjoys reading, he decided to make "Introduction to Philosophy" his first venture into higher education.

Although he does not really plan to acquire enough credits for a degree, Mr. Metzger is looking forward to possibly minor social science courses as well as music and languages.

And if the enthusiasm with which Mr. Metzger began his first class is any indication, Lycoming's oldest student will be a success in any future courses he may choose.

in an archeological excavation of the biblical city of Gezer, between Tel Aviv and Jerusalem, included Bruce Maring, Clark Newberry, Kenneth H. and J. M. Muller, Robert C. Gass, and M. H. H. D. Barham, Jr., of Cherry Point, North Carolina, Sarah E. B. Jones, of Jersey Shore, New Jersey, and Fort Washington, Penn. State, and J. H. H. Newberry, and J. H. H. Newberry, and J. H. H. Newberry.

The excavation portion of the summer project at Gezer concluded early in August. The group then conducted a two-week study of the political situation in the Middle East, traveling to various Israeli cities to interview city and state government officials. The return trip included several days in Athens, Greece.

FLOOD REPORT

By OLIVER E. HARRIS

It has been said by our Canadian neighbors that if it were not for Quebec and the U. S. A., they would have little to talk about. In Pennsylvania this summer, the Great Flood of '72 has pre-empted all other topics of conversation—including politics.

And well it might, because the flood that Hurricane Agnes brought to our area can properly be described as the most devastating natural catastrophe in our history. Williamsport, thanks to its dikes and upstream flood-control dams, escaped the devastation that was visited upon Wilkes-Barre and Harrisburg, in particular.

However, main streams, such as Lycoming and Lovalock Creeks, and smaller feeder streams rampaged out of their banks and caused more damage than one can imagine. The Susquehanna rose within inches of the top of the dikes. But they held, and downtown Williamsport was spared.

Lycoming College, we are thankful to report, suffered relatively minor inconvenience and damage from surface water. When an area is drenched with three months' normal rainfall (12.42 inches) in two days (June 21 and 22), some flooding and minor damage are inevitable.

This is not to minimize the impact of the flood to areas surrounding Williamsport. Many people lost their homes and everything they owned. Others had their places of business put out of business—some permanently. Many summer cottages were severely damaged or simply washed away. Roads were washed out, bridges destroyed, and farms transformed to deep gulches and sand dunes.

As the saying goes, "You had to see it to believe it." Frank Kamm, our Director of Admissions, watched helplessly as the Susquehanna at Jersey Shore put the first floor of his home under six feet of water. When it receded, a number of the administrative staff pitched in to help him dig out of the mud and muck. Adversity brought out the best in most people—they pitched in and helped their less fortunate friends, neighbors, and, yes—even strangers. But that small number of human virtues were present also—looting and stealing.

It will probably take years to restore the most devastated areas. Some may never make it. In any case, the Flood of '72 replaces the Flood of '36 as the worst in the record books. And it will provide conversational material for years to come.

BISHOP D. FREDERICK WERTZ, West Virginia Area, Lycoming president 1955-68, has been elected vice president of the Board of Global Ministries of the United Methodist Church and president of the United Methodist Committee on Relief, the disaster relief unit.

DEDICATED TO
WENRICH H. GREEN '65

This year the graduating class is dedicating the Arrow to a faculty member who has been both teacher and friend to many students. This individual graduated from Lycoming College and later returned to serve as a biology instructor after gaining his master's degree at The Pennsylvania State University. As an instructor, his enthusiasm, particularly for his subject, is contagious. He makes his lectures both informal and humorous, and he is always open to new ideas and fresh approaches. As a person, he is interested and active in the concerns of the times, especially our environmental problems, sex education, and academic life.

For the above reasons, as well as your overall rapport with members of the college community, we, the Class of 1972, dedicate the Arrow to you, Wenrich Hofmann Green.

So reads the dedication page of the Arrow 1972 just off the press. Nick is a native of the Altoona area (Lakemont right next door) where he graduated from high school in 1953. After several years in the U.S. Air Force as a medical technologist he came to Lycoming. During the four years he earned his bachelor of arts in biology, he also was an announcer on radio station WLYC. Upon graduation, Nick stayed at his alma mater as a biology instructor for a year. He then went to The Pennsylvania State University as a graduate assistant to earn his master of education in biological science in 1968. That fall he returned to Lycoming as an instructor and was promoted to assistant professor in 1970. Nick and his wife, Susan (Farley), have a fourteen-month old son.

FALL SPORTS PREVIEW

Twelve running backs are seeking the three starting spots in the Warner backfield, and the competition in early practice has indicated the rushing offense may be surprisingly strong despite the lack of varsity experience. Shown with assistant coaches Jim Girardi and John Kutney. Back row, left to right, Nat Lodge, Kevin Rosenbloom, Peter Cusack, Fred Grieb. Front row, left to right, Sam Schieratano, Chester Chapnick, Michael Fedorco, Gareth Keene, Roger Barto. Missing are Lee Novello, Byron Martz, and Robin Zimmer.

An air of optimism is readily apparent in the Warriors pre-season football practice despite an inexperienced backfield that could easily turn out to be the big surprise of the season.

Both the running and passing offense were hit hard by graduation. However, twelve running backs, many of the freshmen and sophomores, have been displaying excellent form in early drills. Frank Girardi, beginning his first year as head coach after replacing Bud Whitehill at the end of last season, believes he will find the proper blend of speed and power to keep the defense honest.

Sam Schieratano, a freshman, Lee Novello, a sophomore, and Nat Lodge, a junior, are probably the fastest among the dozen backs seeking a starting spot. The power running will be up to Mike Fedorco, Chester Chapnick, and Gareth Keene, all freshmen, and Peter Cusack, a junior. Juniors Fred Grieb and Byron Martz, sophomores Kevin Rosenbloom and Robin Zimmer, and freshman Roger Barto all will probably see action at least early in the season until Girardi has had an opportunity to observe his backs in operation under fire. Lodge is the only letter winner in the offensive backfield, and he received that for his defensive efforts in the secondary.

The quarterback position was also particularly hard hit with the loss of Gumbler Nellen by graduation and Jack Carson by a decision to withdraw from school. As a sophomore last year, Carson took over midway through the season and directed the team to two wins in the last three contests of a 2-6 season.

The entire varsity experience of three quarterbacks fighting for the job is the 32 plays that junior Bob Mesaros participated in in 1971. He completed nine of 28 passes for 85 yards. Sophomore Dick Stewart and freshman Ed Niemczyk also are seeking the job.

Coach Girardi also has another offensive weapon and probably the best place kicker in the Middle Atlantic Conference in sophomore Porfirio Goncalves, who last year set three Locomotive kicking records, including the longest field goal, 46 yards; most in a season, five, and most in a game, two.

Operating in front of the running backs will be an experienced offensive line comprised of guards, Dan Peterson—senior, Dave Franklin—junior, and Dave Rindgen—sophomore, tackles, Bill Dragan—senior, John Yarosh and John Kuska—sophomores, split end, Pete Onorati, a sophomore who led the team in pass receiving last year, tight end, Wayne Goodrow—junior. All are lettermen.

Probably the Warriors' strongest point is the defense. Although two fine defensive backs, Tony Bracciale and Ed Biggio, graduated, most of the remaining starters, as well as several seasoned substitutes, are back. Lettermen returning from the defensive secondary will be Vinnie Joy, a senior who scored three touchdowns last year on pass interceptions and punt returns and was named to the first team M.A.C. All-Stars, Tom Vasanak, a sophomore, Larry Romeo, a junior, and Bub Meyer, a senior.

An outstanding linebacking corps will be headed by lettermen Steve Wiser, a junior, and Tom Ostrowski, a senior. The defensive line will be built around veteran juniors Steve DiMichele and Angelo Famelli.

The Warriors play an eight-game schedule beginning at Albright on September 23, and ending at home with Western Maryland on November 11.

In soccer, Locomotive's other fall intercollegiate sport, Coach Nels Phillips should have an excellent chance to improve on the 5-5-1 mark compiled last year. He is building his team around 16 returning lettermen including Paul Anderson, Tim Blumick, Carl Bolton, Steve Chesnes, Andy Fehr, Jeff Gotler, David Hammett, M. Lundberg, Scott McNeil, John Michalowski, Tim Norland, Archie Rosenberg, George Schenk, Dave Schuch, Chris Spadoni, and Chuck Young. The hooters play eleven matches beginning September 20 at Dickinson.

She recently did an article for the Globe of Jenkintown, Pennsylvania, entitled "Weddings: Whatever Happened to Chantilly Lane?" The article put together an article which contained humor and a touch of sarcasm in describing the "new wedding". It is very interesting reading.

We received word of the tragic death of TOM YOCUM'S wife. Tom and his wife had both obtained their master's degree from North Carolina and were vacationing in the Grand Teton. They were canoeing on the Snake River when they hit rapids and the canoe capsized. Tom was washed ashore, but his wife was swept further down stream and drowned. She was a lovely girl and they both had a love of the outdoors. We extend sincere sympathy to Tom.
